The Female Lubrication Set

You must be clear, good sex is not just a man's responsibility.

For centuries, erection has been interpreted as the sexual power that makes a sexual relationship possible. However is this really true? No! There is a force that makes sexual intercourse pleasant or a legitimate disaster and that is female lubrication, the production of vaginal fluid, given by an increase in the dilation of the sub-epithelial vascular plexuses (similar to the erection of the penis in men).

There are several factors that influence vaginal lubrication, given age (although it is not a high impact factor), diet (there are foods such as excess meat and liquor that damage proper lubrication), climate (sudden changes in weather) and above all moods (sadness and anger, also stress and frustration).

However don't worry, these are not determining factors or anything that has no solution, there are several remedies like the ones we are going to explain:

1. Water-based lubricants: Although there are many colors, flavors, textures and others, we will talk about water-based lubricants because they can be used daily, without altering the body, and without altering the penis. You can find them in pharmacies, and their price is really accessible. You won't notice the difference.
2. Start a routine of foods such as fruits, vegetables, that increase vaginal discharge by lubrication.
3. Go to a trusted sexologist to determine if there is a psychological root.

What does this have to do with my penis and my sexuality?

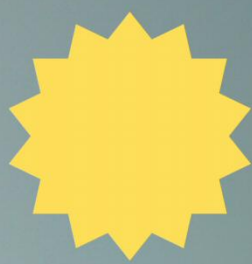

A lot, a vagina without lubrication will generate that your sexual ends perceive pain when penetrating, and your erection will be damaged, consequently it can reach the point that it causes psychological damage and affects your good sexual performance in the future.

Go to the solution and enjoy the sex.

Fashion: Men, don't pay much in December, pay bit in March

Ancient men were not fashion fanatics, they used to buy clothes for many years, even for decades. That's why men's fashion, is given to an integration of marketing impulse, added to excellent end-of-season promotions.

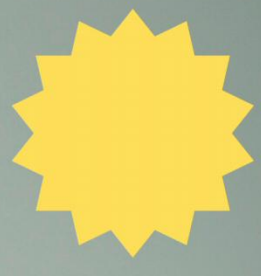

It is no secret that the old model of the wild, lumbering, smoking, moustache-wearing man has been replaced by a stylish, fashion-conscious man whose perspective focuses on how he looks.

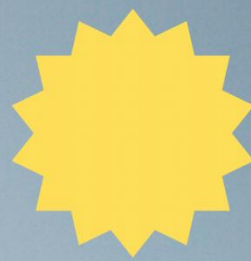

But is it good to spend so much? I don't want to go around the subject, and my reasoning is no more than the following: Buy a great jacket in December for $500, or buy the same great jacket in March for $150.

The previous example I do based on a very regular discount in this month which are the end of season discounts that reach up to 70% off, and others like 2x1, 3x1, among other promotions.

This opens the door for you to use your money well, buy good brands, and look stunning in fashion.

So remember our writing, don't spend in December, invest in March.

Your old car, your new treasure

Imagine an old FIAT 147, a massive car sold in Europe and Latin America in the 1980s.

Practically a piece of junk that nobody wants, or not? You are wrong, nowadays the nostalgia of the generations with purchasing power has put these old cars in the focus of a trade that every day is valued.

There are many brands that every day acquire great value, Renault 4 (from France to the world), Fiat Mirafiori (from Italy to the world), Mercedes Benz E-Class (from Germany to the world), Chevrolet Impala (from Detroit to the world), Ford Pinto (from the United States)... The list is very long, but what is fashionable are not the super classic sports cars, nor muscle cars, nor big brands, although it sounds incredible classic cars are popular old.

Some examples are:

1981 FIAT 147, sold for $25,000

1971 RENAULT 4, sold for $30,000

1972 FIAT 500, sold for $25,000

You might think these are the prices of cars with expensive restoration, but they are not. Your old car has several markets:

1. The original: Those who are fans of these cars want it original, usable, but with its normal appearance, normal wear and tear and above all with its factory parts regardless of the wear.
2. The Restored: Cars that have been restored to their original condition.
3. The restored with technology: They look like new, but they have been grafted with technology engines, computers, gps, and other mechanisms.
4. Unused: Cars that no longer start, but that some people value for having been part of their family in the past.

There are follow-up services where buyers with a large wallet want to pay a large sum - out of nostalgia - for cars that bring back memories even though they no longer serve.

Now when you see your old junk, don't forget that it's worth more every day, and that your bank account can help a lot.

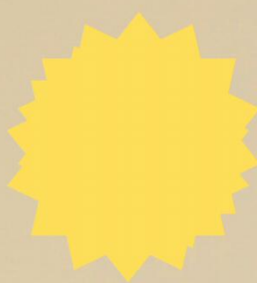

I'm a female driver for Uber, and yes, there is sex in my job

Hello, hello dear Inciter readers.

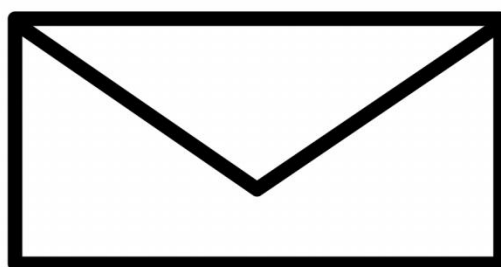

I'm Dan, I've been driving Uber for a few months, I live in Germany. I'm currently 34 years old, I used to be a model, but because of my age I'm not anymore, I have a nice car, and I thought about making some money with Uber.

I think that in Germany there are more men than women, and everything has happened the way I am going to tell you: I usually have conversations with my clients, and I must say that a lot of them have engaged in sexual conversations, nothing unusual, because I like the subject. Besides, who doesn't like sex? I confess to having sex with at least 20 men I have met while driving on the platform, you will think it was in my car but no, we just changed numbers, went out and sex happened. Gladly, I confess that most of them are married, I still don't understand if you have someone at home to have sex with, then why do you look for him outside? I have no explanation, and I am very brazen to ask myself this, since I myself helped them to be unfaithful.

You also don't have to think that I sleep with everyone, but I'm single, I like sex at least 4 times a week, and I really enjoy this routine of having sex with strangers. Maybe it's out of boredom, since I've been with my boyfriend for over 12 years.

And well, I'm not going to leave you curious, and I'm going to tell you about one of my adventures: I looked like a 25 year old boy, from America, I picked him up at the airport in Berlin, and I took him to a hotel, he asked me for the phone number to transport him in the city. The next day he asked for a service at 9 pm, but an hour had passed and he didn't leave, I called him and he told me I could come up and wait for him. I went in, and he was in a freshly bathed towel, I shyly looked at him, and he told me if I wanted to have a wine while I waited for him. Apparently he had already noticed my stinging eyes. So suddenly, after an hour we started talking about sex, he gave me a very exciting story that forced me to touch him, moving on to oral sex... you know the rest.

I hope you like my story, from Germany.
